Friends and More

You can add friends and follow what they do. You can also follow celebrities on FB, just like Twitter.

Just search for the celebrity/group in the search bar, and results should start showing in the dropdown list as you’re typing. If you see the person you’re looking for, click on the person.

When their page shows up, click the “Like” button. From then on, when the celebrity/group updates anything on FB, you will see it in your newsfeed.

Privacy Settings

Make sure you know who is viewing your content and information. Facebook has been known to change the privacy settings and assume that everyone is okay with the changes.

Go to “Account,” and click on Privacy Settings. It is probably best to customize your own settings instead of using default settings. This way you know exactly what is going on with your profile and your notifications.

You don’t have to fill out all the information they ask you to. Almost everything is optional. It is a matter of how much you want to expose yourself.
Understanding facebook

Facebook (FB) is a social networking site which allows users to connect and communicate with other users, or ‘friends’, by posting information about themselves on their own facebook page. Users control how much, or how little, information is seen by the public.

Creating an Account

To create a FB account, you need an email address. You can make one with the following free email providers:

Yahoo.com, Gmail.com, Hotmail.com

Go to facebook.com and insert the information requested. Then click “Sign Up,” and you have created an account.

Your profile indicates who you are to other Facebook users. When filling out your information, you can fill out as much as you want to. Not all information is mandatory.

Facebook Terms and Updating Your Status

FACEBOOK (FB) TERMS

Newsfeed: A continuous stream of your “friends’” activities. This includes, photos, videos, status updates, links, etc.

Friends: Individuals who you network with on FB.

Post: Anything that someone types so that their “friends” can see it.

Tag: Identifying people in photos, videos, links, notes, etc.

Wall: Where people post on your profile.

Profile: Your personal page. Contains your information.

Poke: An informal “I'm thinking of you.”

Administrator: The person who controls the content and settings of a group

Facebook is a place where you can network and connect with many people around the world. There are various ways to let people know what you’re doing.

One way is by updating your status. On the newsfeed page and your profile page, you will see a status bar. This is your way of telling others what you are up to, what interests you, etc. There are a couple of ways to do that.

You can tell people what you’re doing by just writing in the status bar. You can also upload a picture. You can share a web link with everyone. You can also post a video. Or you can ask a question to see how people respond.
